LETTER FROM BOARD PRESIDENT AND EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Dear Friends,

During 2020, we confronted unprecedented challenges of the pandemic along with all of you. And, although we still face uncertainties, we have never been more proud to deliver on our mission and vision. Our mission is the foundation for all our activities and aspirations. With a spirit of strength and determination, we got to work to ensure that the important business of our organization continues to move forward: to preserve, interpret, promote and sustain Frank Lloyd Wright's Martin House.

With restoration complete, the year began with growing visitation and the launch of our first-ever major public art exhibition, featuring the impressive sculptures of ceramist Jun Kaneko set amidst the Martin House landscape and buildings. Despite the disruption of the site being closed for nearly half the year, we persevered and quickly adapted in creative and valuable ways. We provided programming that was both innovative and responsive to the needs of our audiences and the times, mostly by turning to virtual experiences and increased digital opportunities.

The strength of our community has been essential to our ongoing work during the pandemic. Frank Lloyd Wright's Martin House continues to be financially stable, due to our ability to temporarily reduce expenditures and secure alternative sources of revenues. Thank you for your loyal and generous support when so many of our usual revenue sources of funding were not available to us.

We also thank Kevin Malchoff for serving as board president for the past two years. His leadership and the dedication of the entire Martin House board, staff and volunteers has been truly inspirational, especially during recent times.

As we look forward to a year of renewal, we are pleased by all that has been accomplished. We are grateful that the Martin House is once again open to the public, offering safe ways to discover Wright's architecture and design. Thank you once again to our community of friends for your unwavering commitment and loyal support.

Donna L. DeCarolis

VOLUNTEERS

For the ninth year, the Martin House remains the number one tourist attraction on TripAdvisor.com in Buffalo. It takes a dedicated and passionate team to achieve this award year after year. And it would not be possible without our volunteers who are the lifeblood of the Martin House.

There are 375 Martin House volunteers who help run the site. They lead tours for visitors from all over the world and are among the first to welcome our guests when they arrive at our visitor center. They support educational programming, summer camp, community events and fundraisers. They care for our collections and maintain the gardens. They work alongside staff in the office and help guests pick out the perfect memento in our Museum Store. Volunteers provided nearly 6,000 hours of service to the Martin House this year.

Our volunteers shine in so many ways. In addition to sharing their time and talent, they also share the gift of art. For the fifth time, they supported the acquisition of art glass for the Martin House conservatory through donations made to the Volunteer Window Fund.

In addition, our nine-member volunteer leadership team began a new endeavor with the publication of the Volunteer Verandah. This quarterly newsletter is a place for volunteers to stay connected and come together to share news, ideas and fun.

Twenty-nine volunteers reached milestone anniversaries this year – four celebrated 20 years of service, six celebrated 15 years of service, six celebrated 10 years of service, and 13 celebrated five years of service.

We are grateful for and inspired by each and every one of our devoted volunteers.

COLLECTIONS + EXHIBITIONS

The Martin House was pleased to present the opening of the exhibition, The Space Between: Frank Lloyd Wright | Jun Kaneko (June 26, 2020 - October 3, 2021) in collaboration with the Albright-Knox Art Gallery's Public Art Initiative. The installation features seven monumental ceramic sculptures by artist Jun Kaneko located on the grounds of the restored Martin House landscape, as well as a series of smaller works on view inside the visitor center.

In July, the Martin House received a $500,000 grant from the Stockman Family Foundation for a three-year project to support the conservation of art glass from Wright's Barton House. In total, forty-one individual pieces of art glass—in the form of windows and doors—will receive treatment. The work is being conducted by Oakbrook Esser Studios of Oconomowoc, Wisconsin – the only studio authorized by the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation to reproduce the architect's full-scale art glass designs.

The Martin House began work on a special project to reproduce seven Tree of Life windows for the reception room with an anticipated installation date of December 2021. Acquisition of these windows was made possible through the generous support of the New York State Buffalo Billion initiative and is under production at Oakbrook Esser Studios.

In May, we installed another important piece of art glass acquired through the Martin House Volunteer Window Fund. The window is a "single-stem" design—one of fifty-seven glass works that originally graced the openings of the conservatory. We are truly grateful to our volunteers for their ongoing generosity and commitment to the Martin House collections.

In addition, the Martin House received a $10,000 grant from Parks and Trails New York for collections care and management. With the assistance of a curatorial intern, a project is underway to document objects by creating a consistent, accurate, fully illustrated and searchable database. This collections management system will serve as an online portal providing improved access to these important cultural assets. Highlights include an extensive collection of Wright-designed art glass and furniture, as well as fine groupings of Japanese woodcut prints, decorative art objects and personal items once owned by the Martin family.

In October, curators from the Martin House and Dana-Thomas House participated in a live side-by-side tour exploring the rich art glass collections from these two contemporaneous Wright historic buildings. The program was part of a collaborative series, known as Wright Virtual Visits, organized by each of the participating sites and jointly led by the Frank Lloyd Wright Building Conservancy and the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation.

In a collaborative project with the New York State Bureau of Historic Sites, the Martin House completed construction drawings for Wright's design of his version of a Morris chair for the Martin residence. Extensive research, as well as the consultation of other Wright-designed chairs of this type in other museum collections, will now allow the Martin House to raise funds to fabricate at least two examples in accordance with the Martin House Historic Furnishings Plan.

EDUCATION AND PROGRAMS

With the cancellation of tours and school field trips, the Martin House pivoted to virtual offerings for students of all ages. Amherst Central School, Holland Middle School, the Jewish Community Center in Chicago and St. Joseph's School in Batavia were among the first to experience a virtual tour of the Martin House. In partnership with the Office of Alumni Engagement at the University at Buffalo, a virtual presentation was provided to 291 participants, breaking previous engagement records.

The Martin House participated in a virtual art therapy session with a group from the Western New York Alzheimer's Association in partnership with the Albright-Knox Art Gallery. Art supplies were mailed in advance of the creative session where participants drew Wright's famous Tree of Life window.

Throughout the pandemic, cultural organizations across Western New York partnered to share resources and highlight activities using the hashtag #WNYCulturalConnections. As part of this program, the Martin House participated in a virtual story time project hosted by Explore & More – The Ralph C. Wilson, Jr. Children's Museum. Buffalo Common Council Member Joel Feroletto read Iggy Peck, Architect in the Martin House library.

The Girl Scouts of Western New York participated in Architecture in Nature and Discover the Beauty of Art Glass programs at the Martin House. They designed their own bee house suitable for mason bees, made from a can filled with sustainable, hollow lily flower reeds.

After a tour focusing on the designs of art glass throughout the estate, they created their own window cling to take home. Inspiring future designers and architects? We hope so!

GIRL SCOUT DESIGNS WINDOW CLING

The Martin House partnered with friends at Explore Buffalo to welcome Boy Scout troops to the grounds. The scouts spoke with a local architect, examined multiple styles of architecture, toured the Parkside neighborhood and completed a scale/ratio project. There isn't a better place to earn an architecture badge than at the Martin House!

BOY SCOUTS MEASURE GARDEN FOUNTAIN

The Martin House welcomed students from the Society for the Advancement of Construction-Related Arts (SACRA) for their annual tour. SACRA prepares participants for careers in construction-related fields by providing hands-on instruction with industry professionals.

Enthusiasm and creativity filled the Martin House when boys and girls from Bennett Park Montessori participated in the Architecture + Education program led by the Buffalo Architecture Foundation. The pre-K and kindergarten students learned how Frank Lloyd Wright used shapes in his work and then designed special rooms of their own.

Students from SUNY Buffalo State College spent time at the Martin House interviewing staff as part of an exciting project. Students from a journalism class were paired with students from a media production class to create a production exploring a topic of their choice. This group selected Frank Lloyd Wright in Buffalo, and we were pleased to be a part of their story. The production aired on My TV Buffalo WNYO.

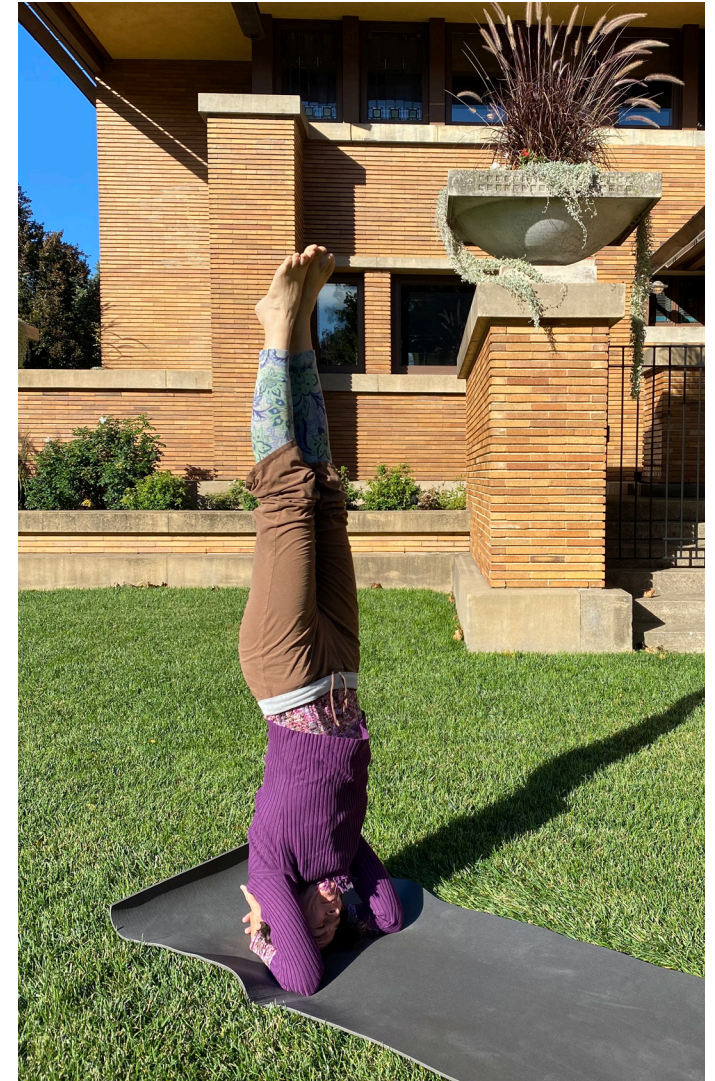

GUESTS IN MARTIN HOUSE LOWER LEVEL ENJOY CHAMPAGNE BEFORE VALENTINE'S DAY TOUR

In celebration of Valentine's Day, the Martin House hosted a Victorian love-themed tour. The evening included wine and cheese, a special discount in the Museum Store and chocolates. Special thanks to our sponsors Premier Group and Parkside Candy. In addition, the Martin House hosted a community event, where families created special cards for residents of Beechwood Continuing Care to help spread some cheer on Valentine's Day.

The Martin House partnered with the Hispanic Heritage Council of Western New York and offered free self-guided tours in celebration of Hispanic Heritage Month. The Albright-Knox Art Truck was on site for participants to design handcrafted buttons, and La Flor Restaurant and Bakery provided delicious Puerto Rican cuisine. Bilingual docents were on hand.

MUSEUM STORE

The Martin House Museum Store transitioned to a new e-commerce platform allowing a better online shopping experience during a time when online retail saw a dramatic increase. The new platform allowed more products to be featured, including one-of-a-kind items typically sold in-store only. This was especially important during the months when the Museum Store was closed, and only curbside pick-up was available. The new system is integrated with inventory allowing the Martin House to better track inventory levels.

The Museum Store offers a carefully curated selection of Wright-inspired items. Among its new offerings are books relating to the Kaneko public art exhibition, nature-inspired jewelry from artist Michael Michaud and Muzen radios.

With more time spent at home, sales for home décor items, particularly table runners, napkins, glassware and candles, increased dramatically.

The Martin House Endowment Fund has been established to ensure valuable funding for ongoing preservation, maintenance and operations of the Martin House, and to sustain the vision established by Frank Lloyd Wright and Darwin D. Martin when they built this American treasure.

The following is a list of gifts received through December 31, 2020 and includes testamentary gifts. Significant additional gifts have been made subsequently and will appear in next year's donor listing. We are grateful for each and every gift.
